

After Easter Sale OF Tailored Suits!

THROUGH our eastern connections we were fortunate in securing fifty suits from a big manufacturer who makes the highest grade man-tailored suits in New York. We bought these garments at 65% of their value

We will place them on sale tomorrow in three lots at $16.50 — $23.50 — $27.50

There are suits here that should sell as high as $50, and none less than $30. You'll not have so good an opportunity again this season. They are sure to win enthusiastic approval of Columbia's discriminating women. It will pay you to investigate. They will not last long.

TO BUILD ON NINTH STREET

Virginia Realty Company Will Erect Two-Story Business Structure.

The Virginia Realty company, of Columbia, has plans under way to build a two-story business house on its property at the northwest corner of Cherry and Ninth streets. Dr. E. Seger, architect, is drawing the plans. The building will be of brick and will cover the entire lot of 142 feet by 150 feet.

The houses now standing on the property were sold yesterday by the company at public auction. The corner house, a five-room frame, occupied by Dr. George A. Bradford, was sold for $257.10 and the other house, also a five-room frame, for $310 to S. C. Hunt & Co. They are being moved to lots on University Avenue between Ave. and Williams streets by George Crist and will be rented by the owners.

An iron fence running in front of the lots was bought by Alexander L. Hicks for $25 and will be placed by him around his residence at 1114 Wilkes Boulevard.

Three sheds were bought by George Crist for $10 and the material in them will be used by him in building a garage at his home, 1701 Cauthorn Street.

Sanford J. Conley, S. C. Hunt and James A. Hudson are the principal stockholders in the Virginia Realty company.

VAUGHN DEPOSITIONS FRIDAY

Formal Notices Served on the Physicians Who Examined Viscera.

Formal notices for the depositions of the physicians, Dr. Paul Schweitzer, Dr. Woodson Moss and Dr. O. W. H. Mitchell, who had the Vaughn viscera under investigation at the time the viscera were taken from Dr. Schweitzer's possession by a writ of replevin, were served late yesterday afternoon. The depositions will be taken at 10 o'clock Friday morning. The replevin case will be tried April 7.

The depositions are to be taken in an effort to show that the analysis was completed when the viscera were taken from Dr. Schweitzer. It is said, however, that the analyses were not complete. Dr. Mitchell, who was making an analysis, said this morning that he had not completed his part of the work when the viscera were taken away.

"Although I had got pretty far along in my investigation," said Dr. Mitchell this morning, "I had by no means carried it as far as I wanted to. I was testing to see whether the body was in a diseased condition at the time of death and with the tests that I had made up to the time of the removal of the viscera, I would not be well satisfied in giving a decision."

Track Men to Meet Tonight.

There will be a meeting of Varsity track men tonight in the trophy room at Rothwell Gymnasium.

FOR HIGH SCHOOL CONTEST

Miss Robnett and Fred Deaton Chosen to Represent Columbia.

At a preliminary debating and essay contest at the Columbia high school yesterday morning, Miss Helen Robnett was chosen to represent the school on High School Day in the essay contest. Her essay was entitled "Mamma's Contribution." Fred Deaton won the debating contest and will represent the school in the debating contest on the same day.

The judges of the contest were: Dr. A. H. R. Fairchild and J. J. Steffens, of the department of English in the University of Missouri, and W. H. Hays, superintendent of the Columbia public schools.

"The Twin Sisters" Hung in Library.

"The Twin Sisters," a painting by Frederick Oakes Sylvester, of St. Louis, was hung in the university library Monday morning. This picture was lent to the university by Prof. T. A. Street, who purchased it at the exhibition of the Art Lovers' Guild held at the University of Missouri recently.

Miss Marian Shaw Is Improving.

Miss Marian Shaw, of 207 South Tenth street, who became ill from a nervous attack yesterday morning, is improving. This is the second time within a month that she has become ill from a nervous disease. Miss Shaw is an assistant in the weather bureau at the University of Missouri.

COLUMBIA WOMAN REMEMBERS GRANT

Mrs. E. C. Wilson Tells Incidents of General's Life Around St. Louis.

HE NEVER FORGOT A FAVOR

Friends. "Bull-doggedness" and Ambitious Wife Made Him Successful.

Mrs. E. C. Wilson, who for the last eight years has lived at Seventh and Locust street, was personally acquainted with General Grant. She spent many years of her life in Chicago, Ill., the home of the Grant family. Mrs. Wilson, now 67 years old, remembers clearly many of the incidents of General Grant's life.

"I liked General Grant," said Mrs. Wilson. "Nearly everyone in our neighborhood did. He used to work for his father, old Jesse Grant, at the candle trade. Old Mr. Grant said that, as 'Bully' was so good for nothing at everything else, perhaps he could make a good soldier. Through the influence of a congressman, Grant was sent to West Point, where he did just as badly as in his father's candle trade."

Grant Not a Society "Star."

Grant afterward became a soldier and was stationed at a fort near the Tena. Mrs. Wilson remembers the army balls given by her parents at which she danced with Grant. "He was a very retiring man and hardly ever went into society," she said. "He was always so dull, too; he never seemed to enjoy himself."

Mrs. Wilson's uncle helped Grant to build his little log cabin, his first home after his marriage. According to Mrs. Wilson, the Grants suffered their worst poverty in this little cabin.

"Grant married Julia Dent, daughter of General Frederick Dent, of St. Louis. She had been accustomed to all the luxuries of the time and found the difference hard to bear. She used to say to me, 'Oh, I can't bear to eat this old brown sugar!' However, Mrs. Grant was too proud to ask her father for aid, and so she tried to conceal her poverty."

Hard Days on the Farm.

"Grant used to come to town with his load of wood like any other farmer. He drove a team of old, broken-down mules, and his harness was so old that it had to be tied with string."

Mrs. Wilson attributes Grant's wonderful success to three causes. "First, he had a great deal of bull-dog to him—yes, I guess that it was his bull-doggedness that carried him through. Then he had some fine backers, some of them the best men in the state. And last of all, he had an ambitious wife. That is what I think counted most of all. Julia Grant was the most ambitious woman I ever knew."

True to His Friends.

Mrs. Wilson said that Grant never forgot a friend, nor did he ever lose an opportunity to repay a kindness. He did not forget the neighbors of his log-cabin days.

Of a meeting with Grant when he was running for President, Mrs. Wilson said: "He was sitting on the big wide porch with all of his army officers when he saw me coming up the walk. He greeted me just as if I had been the President's daughter."

Mrs. Wilson is a descendant of French Huguenots. Her grandmother was a cousin of the Baron of Bacon's rebellion. She is related to many old families in St. Louis.

Old, Perhaps, But Good.

A preacher and a small boy were discussing some problems of the school room. They had just taken up that interesting phase of grammar known as "phrasing," when the preacher said, "Mary milks the cow." "Now, what part of speech is cow?" "Cow is a noun and stands for Mary." "How is that?" "Well, if the cow didn't stand for Mary, how could she milk it?"

Season of "Golf and Stories."

A fisher who entered a compartment of a railway carriage and commenced to spin one of his yarns was promptly silenced by the remark, "This isn't the fish train." And judging by the conversations which one overhears in trains and elsewhere, it seems a pity that a similar restraint cannot be laid on golfers.—London Outlook.
